Foundation Rewards Pathology Excellence in Minneapolis

The combined meeting of the ACVP/STP in Minneapolis in October provided a large, enthusiastic and appreciative crowd for the Foundation’s annual awards reception, where we have the opportunity to honor the best and brightest students, young faculty, and career educators in North American veterinary schools today.

Vice President Annette Gendron-Fitzpatrick presided over the festivities, and this year’s awards reception began with Foundation President Dana Scott recapping a year of change in the Foundation with a message of hope for the future and admiration for this year’s recipients. This year’s Travel Award from the Foundation’s Latin American Division (LCPG) was presented to Dr. Monica Ronderos of the University de La Salle in Bogota, Colombia, and was presented by Dr. Ana Alcaraz. Following that, the Foundation presented its annual Student Scholarship Awards to 26 deserving residents and graduate students from our affiliated universities in North America. A complete list of all awardees is available on page 3 and pictures are available on page 15. Each awardee was introduced by a faculty member from their university and received an inscribed plaque.

This year’s journal scholarship award was won by a former military veterinarian and first-year faculty member at the College of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Tennessee, Dr. MeeJa Sula (Sula MM, Njaa BL, Payton ME: “Histologic Characterization of the Cat Middle Ear: In Sickness and in Health” Veterinary Pathology – 2014:51, p. 951-967). A fellow member of the UT faculty, Dr. Linden Craig, received the Foundation’s Samuel Thompson Lectureship Award for 2015, an award voted on by the attendees each year at the Foundation’s Gross Path Review Course (held this year at the University of Tennessee).

Our second lectureship award of the evening was the Foundation’s Robert L. Farrell Award for Lectureship excellence – this award is presented to an individual who has served the Foundation for many years, presenting lectures around the world. This year’s winner, Dr. Matti Kiupel, is known to all, and his name is synonymous with teaching excellence – Dr. Kiupel has been a long-term lecturer at the Gross Course (where he has won four Sam Thompson Lectureship Awards), as well as the General Path course, ACVP workshop, and has directed the Foundation’s AAVLD Diagnostic Path Workshop for fifteen years.

The final award of the evening Harold Casey Lifetime Teaching Award, which is award annually to a professor who has dedicated a career to teaching veterinary pathology. The award is not for research, or publication, and many awardees may only be known within their own university, as so much of their career has been spent on the necropsy floor teaching students and young faculty, and shaping the the future of their department and our specialty through the development of young minds. This year, Drs. Cathy Carlson and Tim O’Brien of the University of Minnesota had the opportunity to play homage and honor their mentor, Dr. David Hayden, emeritus professor at UM. Their illustrated recap of his career and excerpts from the many letters submitted by previous students painted an excellent picture of what this award is all about – a dedicated teacher who shuns the spotlight for hours in the autopsy room and at one end of a two-headed scope. The highlight of the evening was a brief speech by the man of the moment – Dr. David Hayden, surrounded by his friends and family, reflecting on a career that touched so many. All those in attendance were touched as well by the humor, wisdom, and humility of this man, who reminded us what the purpose of this evening was all about.

You can check the complete list of all awardees on page 3 and pictures on page 15.

The Foundation congratulates all of the winners, and we look forward to next year’s ceremony in New Orleans!

Diagnostic Exercise

Case #: 54  Month: March  Year: 2015

Contributor: Willian Kaida de Almeida, Faculdade de Agronomia e Medicina Veterinária, Universidade Federal de Mato Grosso do Sul, Campo Grande, MS, Brazil and collaborators.

Clinical History: A 1-year-old, spayed female, Domestic Shorthair cat was presented for acute lethargy and labored breathing. Findings at the physical examination included icterus, enlarged liver and spleen, and a palpable mass in the central abdomen. Due to poor prognosis, the animal was euthanatized.

Necropsy Findings:

Follow-up questions: Gross description, morphologic diagnosis, and differential diagnosis.

Mouse Models of Disease: Improving Reproducibility of Pathology Endpoints in Challenge Models

9-11 February 2016
Wellcome Trust Genome Campus, Hinxton, Cambridge, UK

This popular conference will bring together veterinary and human pathologists and scientists working with mouse models in academic and industrial research. The programme will review basic approaches to creating and interpreting reproducible mouse pathology data.

A major focus of the 2016 meeting will be the techniques used to investigate the pathology in the respiratory and gastrointestinal tracts in challenged and non-challenged phenotyping studies.

Topics
- Infectious diseases
- Environmental factors
- Infection models
- Nutrition and diet
- Microbiota
- Lung function
- Respiratory disease models
- Imaging and validation
- Reproducibility of lung cancer models

GUEST LECTURERS:
Dr. Rachel Cianciolo
Dr. Jaco van der Lugt

TOPICS:
• Gross & histologic patterns of renal disease
• Best practices for evaluation of renal tissue
• Renal and lower urinary tract diseases of small and large animals
• Neoplasia of kidneys and urinary tract
• Systemic effects of renal disease
• Biomarkers of urinary system injury

TRAVELING SCHOLARSHIP AWARD
The C.L. Davis European Division has funds to sponsor five awardees to attend the European Division Pathology Symposium. The award will comprise a grant of €400 towards the cost of travel and accommodation. There will be no registration fee. These scholarship awards are open to veterinary pathologists in training in European veterinary schools or research institutes. Preference will be given to applicants studying for higher degrees or who wish to gain further qualifications in pathology. Applicants should send a Curriculum vitae giving full details of their pathology experience and career plans together with a nomination by their Head of Department to the conference organizer:
